

Economic aid for adolescents

The task of the economic aid service for adolescents consists amongst other things of implementing youth welfare measures in accordance with the Sozialgesetzbuch (Social Code), eighth book (SGB VIII) both in terms of administration and finances.

After determination of the individual requirements of the young people, assistance is granted for educational, therapeutic and other aids in out-patient, partial in-patient and in-patient form. The determination of the youth welfare requirements is conducted via the Social Services.

In addition, applications are processed for the complete or partial assumption of the fees for the attendance of a child day-care facility and the fees for child day-care supervision (day-care).
